Housing is a human right and the space where we begin to build our loving families and communities. This photo exhibit, a compilation of images taken by ONE DC's Dominic T. Moulden, shows spaces in the District and around the world. The spaces shown—in DC, South Africa, Nicaragua, and Ethiopia—are modest homes where communities nurture a culture of resiliency and resistance in the face of struggle. As we see our reality reflected back at us in the homes of others in another place, we evoke our solidarity with neighbors abroad and down the street to organize together for the healthy housing we all deserve.
